

Having grown up on the island of Cyprus, Cat Rigdon reminisces about her early memories of swimming through groves of prickly urchins and submerged ruins, and the thoughts of a home she mourns. Rigdon depicts fossilized sea urchin shells with intersecting architectural elements in oil paint on custom CNC-router cut acrylic sheets.