The Affordable Connectivity Program

The Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) is a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) benefit program that helps ensure that households can afford the broadband they need for work, school, healthcare, and more.

What are the benefits?

Qualifying households are limited to one monthly service credit and one device discount. Credits are non-transferable and limited to one per household. This includes any individual or group of individuals who are living together at the same address and share income and expenses.

$30 monthly towards your internet service

$100+ one-time assistance towards device

*One-time co-payment of $11 for activation into the T-Mobile nationwide network.
